Welcome to this first concert in our new Playlist series!

One of the things we know – from our own experiences as musicians as well as years of talking with audiences – is that most people come to love the music we play through a personal connection. Whether it’s a parent, a relative, a teacher or a friend – there will be someone whose enthusiasm has introduced us to the wonders and delights of orchestral music.

That’s the kind of connection that we, as musicians, seek to establish with our listeners. And in this series, individual members of the SSO will introduce you to very personal selections music – sharing what makes those pieces special, emotionally and musically. Assistant Concertmaster Lerida Delbridge has devised the ‘playlist’ for this first concert and will introduce it tonight.

In parallel with the musical choices that you’ll hear in these concerts, the program covers will assemble objects and images of personal significance. Lerida has chosen photos of her pets from when she was growing up in Kangaroo Ground, just outside the Yarra Valley; the stuffed deer, Fergus, who accompanies her on long-haul flights; shoes for her love of running; the beautiful Gagliano violin she plays; pearl earrings that she wears for nearly every performance; and a gardenia for her love of gardening – tangible creative work that balances the ephemeral nature of musical performance. ‘The gardenia is one of my favourite flowers,’ she says, ‘and the flowers bloom for such a short time, which always reminds me of how nature is always growing, changing, maturing – just like our lives!’

MENDELSSOHN ‘Swiss’ Sinfonia

Your father’s a banker and an accomplished amateur musician; your mother taught you piano. Your big sister also plays piano, your younger sister sings, your little brother is a budding cellist. You can turn in a respectable performance on violin and viola, and although you have to stand on a stool to do it, you’re showing promise as a conductor. Your family hosts ambitious Sunday morning musicales – pro-am performances that include members of the Berlin Court Orchestra. Every second week you plan programs, conduct rehearsals and appear as a performer. Nearly every musicale includes something you’ve composed yourself. This was the world of the young Felix Mendelssohn.

Among the music that Felix wrote for his family musicales between 1821 and 1824 were his 13 string sinfonias. His teacher Carl Zelter had suggested he compose a series of short symphonies for string orchestra modelled on a set composed by Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach in 1773. The ninth of these takes its nickname from the quotation of a Swiss folk tune – but not in the movement we play tonight. The first movement begins with a slow introduction (Grave), then shifts to a faster tempo and more cheerful mood for the main Allegro (fast) section.

FELIX MENDELSSOHN

The musical world has its fair share of child prodigies, and the most famous of all is Mozart. But it’s been argued that Mendelssohn at 17 was an even better composer than Mozart at the same age. This is on the strength of two enduring masterpieces: the radiant Octet, composed in 1825, and the overture to A Midsummer Night’s Dream from the following year. His string symphonies, composed in the preceding years, were ‘rediscovered’ in the late 1950s.

FAURÉ Pie Jesu from the Requiem

In Fauré’s Requiem the soprano soloist has just one, tiny number to sing, but this is the pivotal movement of the work and perhaps its most striking. A few years ago when the complete work was performed here in the City Recital Hall, the soprano soloist sang the Pie Jesu from the upper stage balcony – an angelic image to complement the purity of sound and prayerful mood of Fauré’s music.

Pie Jesu, Domine
dona eis requiem, sempiternam requiem.

Merciful Lord Jesus, grant them rest, eternal rest.
It has been said of my Requiem that it does not express the fear of death: someone has even called it a lullaby of death. But that is how I feel death: as a happy deliverance, a longing for the happiness of the beyond, rather than a painful experience. Gabriel Fauré

GABRIEL FAURÉ

Fauré found professional security and influence as an organist, and later director of the Paris Conservatoire, composing during the summer. His style was profoundly lyrical and intimate in character and his most significant contribution to French music was in the realm of song.

AARON COPLAND

For many, Aaron Copland’s name is synonymous with American music – you only have to think of his ballets Rodeo and Appalachian Spring or the Fanfare for the Common Man. It was his pioneering achievement to shrug off the musical influence of Europe and develop a style that was recognisably characteristic of America in the 20th century, and yet distinctive to him alone.

COPLAND Shaker Theme from Appalachian Spring

Aaron Copland composed his Appalachian Spring ballet score for the Martha Graham Dance Company in response to a commission from the American music patron Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Composed in 1943–44, the ballet followed a scenario about a marriage in the Appalachian mountains. It was composed for a chamber orchestra of 13 instruments, as many as could fit into the orchestra pit.

The melodies in the ballet suggest pioneer songs and dances and the spirit of the American frontier. But Copland himself was adamant that the only genuine American ‘folk tune’ used in the ballet was ‘Simple Gifts’ – a dance-song by Elder Joseph Brackett of the Shakers which, said Copland, had been previously unknown to the general public.

’Tis the gift to be simple, ‘tis the gift to be free, ‘Tis the gift to come down where we ought to be, And when we find ourselves in the place just right, ‘Twill be in the valley of love and delight. When true simplicity is gain’d, To bow and to bend we shan’t be ashamed, To turn, turn will be our delight, Till by turning, turning we come round right.

VAUGHAN WILLIAMS

The Lark Ascending

From soft, lingering orchestral chords, a gently trilling violin emerges as if out of morning mist, to make its soaring ascent: a lark joyfully rising and dipping above the countryside... The improvisatory feel of this ‘Romance for solo violin and orchestra’ captures the wandering and wheeling of the lark. Its first listeners in 1921 were struck by this feeling of boundless freedom.

Vaughan Williams doesn’t attempt to mimic the call of the lark. Instead, we hear long, unregimented trills on the violin that evoke the lark’s hovering flight, as well as its uplifting song. The freedom and fluidity of the opening section of music returns towards the end, as the clear and regular pulse heard in the middle section melts away. The last minute of music is an extended solo for the violin: the lark has broken free of all constraints, and eventually disappears, joyfully but with a distant sense of yearning, into the blue English sky.
The Lark Ascending was inspired by George Meredith’s poem, which begins...

He rises and begins to round,
He drops the silver chain of sound,
Of many links without a break,
In chirrup, whistle, slur and shake.

RALPH VAUGHAN WILLIAMS
His father was a vicar, his mother descended from Josiah Wedgwood, an uncle was Lord Chief Justice, and Charles Darwin a great uncle. RVW himself was a mild-mannered, mystical, agnostic Labour voter. At the Royal College of Music, Stokowski and Holst were friends, Stanford and Parry his teachers, as also later in Berlin and Paris were Bruch and Ravel. From 1900 onwards RVW found inspiration in English folk music traditions. His major legacy is his nine symphonies. (‘Ralph’ is pronounced in the traditional way: rafe)

JS BACH Double Violin Concerto
Bach’s surviving concertos for violin and strings were composed when he was Kapellmeister at the court of Anhalt-Cöthen (1717–1723). For the first time in his career, Bach was free of the duties of an organist and director of music for a church. The Prince was a good amateur musician who, as Bach said, ‘not only loved but knew music’. As a Calvinist, this Prince kept the music for his chapel simple, and Bach’s main task was to provide instrumental music for concerts. As a result, many of his finest instrumental works were written for the court’s 17 players, including – it’s thought – the Brandenburg Concertos. Two outstanding violinists, Joseph Spiess and Martin Friedrich Marcus, had been imported from Berlin to Cöthen. It was probably for them that Bach composed the Concerto in D minor for two violins, BWV 1043.

Bach had come to Cöthen from Weimar and it was there that he got to know Vivaldi’s violin concertos and embraced them as models. In fact the opening theme of the D minor concerto for two violins may have been borrowed from Vivaldi’s Op.1 No.11. And yet it is distinctively Bach! In place of Vivaldi’s fiery and assertive unisons, Bach presents his ideas with a superbly active bass line, interweaving parts and a rhythmic drive helped by uneven phrase lengths. But Vivaldi’s influence remains in the way the orchestral texture clears for the entries of the soloists, with their wide leaps and interchanging roles.

JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH
In his lifetime Bach was renowned as an organist, after his death his name was kept alive by enthusiasts, and then in the 19th century he gained enduring fame as a great master of the baroque era. His career has been defined by three major periods. In 1708 he became court organist in Weimar; in 1717 Prince Leopold of Anhalt-Cöthen offered him a Kapellmeister post. In 1722 he won the job of cantor at the Thomas Church in Leipzig where he spent the remaining 27 years of his life.

Although Mahler typically employed huge orchestral forces, this particular movement is scored for just harp and strings. According to Mahler’s colleague, Dutch conductor Willem Mengelberg, the Adagietto was intended as a declaration of love for Alma Schindler and was composed shortly after the couple met. More like a fascinated bystander than a conductor, Mengelberg annotated his score for the music with comments such as: ‘NB. This Adagietto was Gustav Mahler’s declaration of love to Alma! Instead of a letter he sent her this in manuscript: no accompanying words. She understood and wrote to him: he should come!!!’ Mengelberg also wrote into the margin a brief poem, possibly given to him by Alma (and composed by Mahler), although it has also been suggested that Mengelberg wrote the poem himself, fitting the words to the opening violin melody:

Wie ich Dich liebe
Du meine Sonne
Ich kann mit Worten Dir’s nicht sagen
Nur meine Sehnsucht kann ich Dir klagen
Und meine Liebe
Meine Wonne!

How I love you,
my sun,
I cannot tell you in words,
I can only pour out to you my longing
and my love, my delight!

The Adagietto gained a wider audience when used in the soundtrack for Visconti’s 1971 film Death in Venice.
GUSTAV MAHLER
Mahler is now regarded as one of the greatest composers of symphonies from the turn of the 20th century. But during his life his major career was as a conductor – he was effectively a ‘summer composer’. Mahler believed that a symphony must ‘embrace the world’. His are large-scale, requiring huge orchestras and often lasting more than an hour. They cover a tremendous emotional range, and they have sometimes been described as ‘Janus-like’ in the way they blend romantic and modern values, self-obsession and universal expression, idealism and irony. His Fifth Symphony was composed in 1901–02, around the time of his betrothal to Alma Schindler.

Resident at the iconic Sydney Opera House, where it gives more than 100 performances each year, the SSO also performs in venues throughout Sydney and regional New South Wales. International tours to Europe, Asia and the USA – including three visits to China – have earned the orchestra worldwide recognition for artistic excellence.

The orchestra’s first Chief Conductor was Sir Eugene Goossens, appointed in 1947; he was followed by Nicolai Malko, Dean Dixon, Moshe Atzmon, Willem van Otterloo, Louis Frémaux, Sir Charles Mackerras, Zdeněk Mácal, Stuart Challender, Edo de Waart and Gianluigi Gelmetti. Vladimir Ashkenazy was Principal Conductor from 2009 to 2013. The orchestra’s history also boasts collaborations with legendary figures such as George Szell, Sir Thomas Beecham, Otto Klemperer and Igor Stravinsky.

The SSO’s award-winning education program is central to its commitment to the future of live symphonic music, developing audiences and engaging the participation of young people. The orchestra promotes the work of Australian composers through performances, recordings and its commissioning program. Recent premieres have included major works by Ross Edwards, Lee Bracegirdle, Gordon Kerry, Mary Finsterer, Nigel Westlake and Georges Lentz, and the orchestra’s recordings of music by Brett Dean have been released on both the BIS and SSO Live labels.

Other releases on the SSO Live label, established in 2006, include performances with Alexander Lazarev, Gianluigi Gelmetti, Sir Charles Mackerras, Vladimir Ashkenazy and David Robertson. In 2010–11 the orchestra made concert recordings of the complete Mahler symphonies with Ashkenazy, and has also released recordings of Rachmaninoff and Elgar orchestral works on the Exton/Triton labels, as well as numerous recordings on ABC Classics.
